Sunday Last, Sixth Anniversary of Stormiest Day Ever Known On Michigan's Great Lakes

Of the Storm of November 9, 1913
Which Caused Disaster on the Great Lakes

Sunday, November 9, 1919, was a most beautiful day, not as perfect as some days, but moderately warm and calm, with the sun peeping out occasionally from the clouds and making a wonderful showing at sunset with full glorious rays shining over the November earth.

The day, November 9, brought to mind that same date of 1913, six years ago, when the fiercest storm that the Great Lakes had ever known, swept over the country and brought tragedy and disaster in its wake.

All day the storm raged, growing fiercer and stronger during the night, and many a prayer went up for the ships that were out and the crews aboard, but no information was available as to the safety or the danger until sometime on Monday, when it became known that many boats were lost on Lake Huron, but several days elapsed before the news became definite, and the sea began to give up its secrets.

The steamers Regina, Argus, McGean, Price and many others had gone down in the deep waters, taking with them their entire crews.

And then bodies began to come ashore, eleven at Port Frank, one near Lexington, but these were only a few to the many who never came up.

One of the tragic events interesting to our people was that of the sinking of the Chas. S. Price, which overturned at a point opposite Cedarwood, local summer resort, the bow or a mast of which could still be seen the following summer from this beach, with the use of field glasses. This wreck was called the mystery ship, because it was some time before it was discovered what boat it was, and how it came to be bottom side up. The steamer Price still remains in this position, although several efforts have been made to float her, but have been unsuccessful.

It may be that many bodies are still confined under this boat, as only seven have been accounted for among those washed ashore.

It was a time that brought suffering and sorrow into many homes.

NO FLU

A year ago everybody was having or had had or were going to have the flu, which was an epidemic spreading all over the United States and fatal in many cases.

It was a dread disease and people were frightened and all sorts of preventions and precautions were taken, a good many perhaps foolish, but still thoroughly believed in and possibly in that way doing its bit of good. We were given to understand by those who purported to know that the winter of 1919 and 1920 would see the influenza more prevalent than ever. So far the disease has not appeared, at least in this locality, and here's hoping and trusting that we see no more of it.

SOLDIER DEAD FROM NORTHERN RUSSIA

One hundred and eleven bodies, Michigan soldiers of the 339th Infantry, killed while fighting in Northern Russia, have arrived in New York and will be transferred to the homes of relatives. The majority go to Detroit.

THE TELEPHONE

A voice across the telephone can make or mar the day. Be careful of the tone you use. And think of what you say.

Your pleasant smile be seen. Or known your kindly heart. For people at the telephone are often miles apart.

The girl who answers "Central" Has a score of lines to mind. Mistakes are sure to happen. So be patient and be kind.

For life is like a garden. Where our daily acts are grown. And as nature has ordained it. We will reap as we have sown.

Then sow a "smile" and reap a "smile."

And in the end you'll find That nothing pays more interest Than the art of being kind.

COUNTY S. S. CONVENTION

The St. Clair County Sunday School convention which was held in Capac last week was an extremely interesting and profitable meeting.

Nineteen schools were represented by 132 delegates and the sessions were stirring and enthusiastic. Several invitations were given for the next convention, from Port Huron, from Fargo from Capac and from Yale. The latter invitation was accepted, and our little city will entertain the several Sunday school delegates of St. Clair county in 1920.

At the luncheon meeting of the executive committee of the St. Clair County Sunday School Association at the Board of Commerce, Port Huron, Friday, Nov. 7, at 12:30 p. m., plans were made for the coming year's work. Standing committees were appointed, and place of next county convention decided upon. Through the decision of the chair, in a tie vote, Yale was decided upon as the place for the next convention. The ministers of Yale were chosen as a committee, with Mr. Marion, of the Church of Christ, as chairman, to make the necessary preparation and see to it that this convention be the best that has ever been held in the county.

COLD PACK METHOD IS NOT BLAMED

So Say Scientists in United States
Department of Agriculture

Decayed products, not the cold pack method of canning are responsible for the recent deaths of five people in Detroit who ate ripe olives, say scientists in the United States Department of Agriculture. They also say that if people would throw away or refuse to eat food that smells spoiled they would be insured against poisoning by the Bacillus botulinus, the bug that has come into the lime-light recently through its nefarious behavior. This organism, when present in canned food is the cause of active decay.

It is poor economy to eat food which has begun to spoil or rot. The person who does runs the risk of death. In every case observed of botulinus poisoning, the people who served the food knew that it had an unpleasant stench—a smell of decay or putrefaction, and it should never have been put on the table.

Ripe olives, which the Detroit health commissioner claims caused the death of five in Detroit, are not packed in the cold-pack method. The process usually employed to preserve olives is to dip them several times in lye, rinse them in fresh water and then put them in weak brine. No heat is used and the brine is not strong enough to prevent toxine formation.

DELTA LAMBDA MEET

The first meeting of the Delta Lambda Club for the fall was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Farley Tuesday evening.

Ten members were present and the usual famous pot-luck supper was disposed of with the usual famous appetites. After the meal topics of current events were discussed and a social time enjoyed.

It was decided to prepare a plan for active work during the winter, and we have been promised a sketch of the club, its aims and aspirations for a near future issue of the Expositor.

Small Child Badly Burned

Velma, the one-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Harnden was quite badly scalded one morning last week. She was playing near the stove with a stick and pushed the coffee pot over, the contents spilling on her arm and side. While her condition is serious, she will probably recover.—Peck Times.

MANY THANKS

I wish through the Expositor, to express my appreciation for the kindness shown in many ways to myself and family by neighbors and friends when we were driven out of our home by fire. Surely such acts of brotherly love mean a whole lot in this life.

John Bright.

NEW MAN SECURED FOR COUNTY ROAD MANAGER

William W. Cox, of Lansing, Will Succeed D. D. Worcester on December First

William W. Cox of Lansing, who is considered one of the best road building experts in the state, will be the next road engineer for St. Clair county and on December 1st will succeed David D. Worcester.

This announcement was made Wednesday by F. E. Beard, chairman of the county road commission. Negotiations have been pending for some time for Mr. Cox's services, and the details were closed on Tuesday. Mr. Cox comes to St. Clair county with a record of achievement in the road building line. For the past ten years he has been associated with the state highway department. He has been deputy for F. F. Rogers, state highway commissioner, and is one of his most valued lieutenants.

F. E. Beard said: "I feel that St. Clair county is most fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Cox. He has a state wide reputation as an engineer and road builder."

MAY BE MORE SOBER BUT NOT MORE SANE

Dr. Van Dyke Says Prohibition
Is Not Stopping Riot and Murder

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 11—Highway robberies, race riots and murders "seem to be increasing in spite of prohibition," said Dr. Henry Van Dyke, former American minister to the Netherlands, in an address here last night before the World's Christian Citizenship conference.

"The world may be more sober," he said, "but it certainly is not more sane." On the contrary, it seems as if the pressure of human impulse and passion has become more intense, while the restraint of reason and conscience has relaxed. What else could you expect from a world which does not go to church, and whose chief intellectual influence is the moving picture show?"

Dr. Van Dyke declared a "stand pat" world was impossible. The world, he said, was not without hope or effort for improvement. Human nature has not changed and "selfishness, ignorance and violence" are the ancient enemies against which civilization must ever contend. The church should not take sides with either capital or labor but "with humanity and Christ."

Referring to the movements under way for a better day Dr. Van Dyke said it was "inevitable that there should be a partnership, a League of Nations, to prevent or suppress any new outbreak of the war madness," which had cost the world about $200,000,000,000 and nearly 8,000,000 men slain and countless thousands of aged men, women and children starved to death.

"The frivolity of certain American senators," he said, "may keep us out of the league for a brief time, but in the end it is coming and we shall be in it as sure as there is a God in Heaven and a dominant common sense in the American people." The speaker asserted "collective bargaining" between capital and labor has come to stay and that labor unions are indispensable but that the responsibility of both to the public must be recognized.

"Secrecy in regard to the conditions of labor and the accumulation of wealth must and will be abolished," declared Dr. Van Dyke. "The books of the great corporations and of the labor unions must be open to inspection. The common people, who are neither proletarian nor capitalist, have a right to know what goes on behind closed doors. Secret societies of any kind are enemies of the republic. We are going to get rid of them."

Woman Juror Excused

In the October panel only one woman, Mrs. Lottie Horton, of Meade township, was called for duty. When she appeared in court with the other jurors Judge Beach dismissed her from service giving as a reason that the county was not prepared to take care of women as jurors yet as no arrangements had been made for their comfort.—Huron County Tribune.

A program and box social will be given at the Foster school house, 3 1/2 miles north and one mile east of Yale, tomorrow, Friday evening.

Our Schools Can Now Receive Wireless Messages and Students Are Becoming Very Enthusiastic

MONSTER PREPARATION

A whole army of mechanics and laborers are at work preparing the mammoth structures for the 1919 International Live Stock Exposition. This essential preliminary task in order that we may fitly celebrate the Twentieth Anniversary event, is being conducted on a more elaborate scale than ever before, the management being determined to insure the comfort of visitors and their charges. The spacious buildings and grounds are being artistically decorated.

Owing to the wonderful growth of the show and to properly house all entries, several more buildings are in process of preparation. An effort is being put forth to make the International Grain and Hay Show, a new department of the International Live Stock Exposition, on the same high level attained by this last mentioned institution.

Since the inauguration of the exposition, it has been the policy of the management to spare no expense to insure perfection in every detail.

Owing to the increased cost of materials and labor these details might have been neglected this year, but the directors decided that it would be doubtful economy and the high standard of previous years will be maintained if not excelled.

When the gates of the exposition are opened on Nov. 29th, for the great live stock round-up of the season, the public will realize that regardless of obstacles and abnormal conditions nothing essential to the success of the exposition has been overlooked.

Wireless Apparatus Has Again Been Placed in Full Operation

The wireless apparatus has again been placed in full operation. The large aerial has been suspended between the standpipe and the school house. This aerial is no doubt one of the largest and most efficient in the state. We are now able to get the time, weather reports and press notices sent out by the government station at Arlington, Va. Several boys are showing considerable interest in this subject and a class is being organized and the subject pursued.

SUNDAY MORNING FIRE

Sunday morning last at 8:30 the alarm of fire was sounded by the power house whistle, and it was soon learned that John Bright's house on Wood street was afire. The hose companies quickly responded and the flames were subdued, but not until a great deal of damage was done by fire and water.

Mr. Bright had just recently remodelled his house and the family was nicely settled and enjoying the comforts and conveniences of their home. It is not known just how the fire started for no fire had been built in the stove in that part of the house where the fire broke out since the night before. A defective chimney may have been the cause, and the fire must have smoldered away all night.

The loss to the building and furniture is around $800, both covered by insurance.

CITY FAVORED BY COURT'S DECISION

Circuit Judge Eugene F. Law on Friday issued a decree in the case of the city of Yale vs. Henry P. Ohmer in favor of the plaintiff. The findings of the court compel the defendant to move a wooden building from inside the fire limits of the city. The case was started when the city filed a bill of complaint, alleging that Ohmer had moved a wooden structure into a vicinity in the city which is controlled by the fire laws in direct violation of the ordinance.

In issuing the decree, the court found that the allegations contained in the bill, which was filed about three weeks ago, were correct, and an order has been issued directing the defendant to remove the structure at once.

Church Buys Parsonage Property

The Remington house and lot on Wood street has been purchased by the Church of Christ for a parsonage. The property was owned by Rufus Remington, who was over from Lapeer last week making the transfer, the price paid being $1,800.

This church is growing and has felt the need of a church home for its minister. The place is in fairly good repair and certainly can be considered a good investment. A coat of paint will be put on the house this fall and a furnace installed another year.

Rev. and Mrs. Marion will move from the Jackson house shortly into a comfortable home parsonage.
